

Egypt: National Guidelines for Trustworthy AI

Research Foundation Strength: 16.4971 | Research Consensus: 48 papers

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.782)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence compliance" (score: 0.866)

In fact, Organizations should implement the following foundational procedures and policies to ensure safe, ethical, and compliant use of AI: The organization s AI objectives and guiding principles Roles and responsibilities (CAIO, AI governance board, risk/compliance leads) AI system classification and approval pathways Risk thresholds and escalation procedures The processes and documentation ensu

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence governance" (score: 0.862)

Artificial Intelligence is rapidly reshaping public services, businesses, and societies around the world. For Egypt, AI represents a historic opportunity to accelerate national development, improve government efficiency, and enhance the quality of life for citizens. But realizing this potential requires more than technological progress, it requires clear Governance to ensure that AI is used safely

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introdu

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations (category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evalu

Category: EXPLAINABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.772)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.868)

. Provide clear, accessible, and non-technical information describing the AI system s purpose, capabilities, limitations, . Clearly communicate the role of automation versus human involvement, including whether the system informs, supports, . Select model architectures and Explainability techniques

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.861)

. Ensure that the system remains sufficiently explainable for its risk level, user groups, and decision criticality. . Maintain mechanisms to provide meaningful explanations of system outputs to users, operators, auditors, and regulators, as . Reassess Explainability requirements following model updates, . Establish/Outsource AI Regulatory Sandbox to provide a control and supervised testing enviro

Supporting Research (explainability):

→ Train ttextquotesingle n Trade: Foundations of Parameter Markets (category alignment: 0.883)

We introduce four principles for explainable artificial intelligence (AI) that comprise fundamental properties for explainable AI systems. We propose that explainable AI systems deliver accompanying evidence or reasons for outcomes and processes; provide explanations that are understandable to individual users; provide explanations that correctly reflect the system s process for generating the out

→ Advancing Early Alzheimer's Disease Detection in Underdeveloped Areas with Fair Explainable AI Methods (category alignment: 0.855)

Artificial intelligence (AI)-based telemedicine systems for early Alzheimer's detection using low-cost modalities are vital for rural or underdeveloped areas where travelling distance and high-cost devices like MRI are drawbacks. These systems require eXplainable AI (XAI) for reliable outcomes and intuitive explanations.

Current XAI evaluations lack input from medical professionals and overlook st

→ On the Connection between Game-Theoretic Feature Attributions and Counterfactual Explanations (category alignment: 0.853)

Explainable Artificial Intelligence (XAI) has received widespread interest in recent years, and two of the most popular types of explanations are feature attributions, and counterfactual explanations. These classes of approaches have been largely studied independently and the few attempts at reconciling them have been primarily empirical. This work establishes a clear theoretical connection between

Category: FAIRNESS (avg. keyword score: 0.768)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence fairness" (score: 0.852)

An earlier library, extending scikit-learn, that introduced fairness metrics and enabled training under fairness constraints. A newer tool leveraging LLMs to help analysts find biases in tabular data incorporate TensorFlow Model Analysis (TFMA) with Fairness Indicators to calculate metrics for different data segments and visualize bias issues on Clarify and IBM Watson OpenScale offer continuous bi is one that ensures fairness by minimizing bias and discrimination; explainability by making its decisions understandable; robustness by resisting adversarial attacks and failures; safety by preventing harmful outputs; transparency and accountability through traceability and auditability; and respect for user privacy. To meet these criteria, researchers and

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence fairness" (score: 0.847)

Supporting Research (fairness):

→ Fairness in Agreement With European Values: An Interdisciplinary Perspective on AI Regulation (category alignment: 0.842)

With increasing digitalization, Artificial Intelligence (AI) is becoming ubiquitous. AI-based systems to identify, optimize, automate, and scale solutions to complex economic and societal problems are being proposed and implemented. This has motivated regulation efforts, including the Proposal of an EU AI Act. This interdisciplinary position paper considers various concerns surrounding fairness an

→ Recycling Privileged Learning and Distribution Matching for Fairness (category alignment: 0.841)

Equipping machine learning models with ethical and legal constraints is a serious issue; without this, the future of machine learning is at risk. This paper takes a step forward in this direction and focuses on ensuring machine learning models deliver fair decisions. In legal scholarships, the notion of fairness itself is evolving and multi-faceted. We set an overarching goal to develop a unified

→ Contrastive Counterfactual Fairness in Algorithmic Decision-Making (category alignment: 0.840)

The widespread use of artificial intelligence algorithms and their role in decision-making with consequential decisions for human subjects has resulted in a growing interest in designing AI algorithms accounting for fairness considerations. There have been attempts to account for fairness of AI algorithms without compromising their accuracy to improve poorly designed algorithms that disregard sens

UNESCO: Recommendation on the Ethics of AI

Research Foundation Strength: 16.4668 | Research Consensus: 37 papers

Category: FAIRNESS (avg. keyword score: 0.761)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence fairness" (score: 0.883)

to facilitate fair access to AI technologies and address the challenges that they bring to diversity and interconnectivity of

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equitable" (score: 0.871)

to facilitate fair access to AI technologies and address the challenges that they bring to diversity and interconnectivity of

Supporting Research (fairness):

→ Fairness in Agreement With European Values: An Interdisciplinary Perspective on AI Regulation (category alignment: 0.842)

With increasing digitalization, Artificial Intelligence (AI) is becoming ubiquitous. AI-based systems to identify, optimize, automate, and scale solutions to complex economic and societal problems are being proposed and implemented. This has motivated regulation efforts, including the Proposal of an EU AI Act. This interdisciplinary position paper considers various concerns surrounding fairness and

→ Recycling Privileged Learning and Distribution Matching for Fairness (category alignment: 0.841)

Equipping machine learning models with ethical and legal constraints is a serious issue; without this, the future of machine learning is at risk. This paper takes a step forward in this direction and focuses on ensuring machine learning models deliver fair decisions. In legal scholarship, the notion of fairness itself is evolving and multi-faceted. We set an overarching goal to develop a unified

→ Contrastive Counterfactual Fairness in Algorithmic Decision-Making (category alignment: 0.840)

The widespread use of artificial intelligence algorithms and their role in decision-making with consequential decisions for human subjects has resulted in a growing interest in designing AI algorithms accounting for fairness considerations. There have been attempts to account for fairness of AI algorithms without compromising their accuracy to improve poorly designed algorithms that disregard sens

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.760)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence transparency" (score: 0.858)

. While efforts need to be made to increase transparency and explainability of AI systems, including those with . Transparency and explainability relate closely to adequate extra-territorial impact, throughout their life cycle to responsibility and accountability measures, as well as to

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence compliance" (score: 0.856)

this, such regulatory frameworks should be consistent the safety and security of AI systems, with multiwith the principle of human oversight and establish a

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introdu

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations (category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evalu

Category: EXPLAINABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.753)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.878)

. While efforts need to be made to increase transparency and explainability of AI systems, including those with . Transparency and explainability relate closely to adequate extra-territorial impact, throughout their life cycle to responsibility and accountability measures, as well as to

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.876)

. Explainability refers to making intelligible and providing insight into the outcome of AI systems. The explainability of AI systems also refers to the understandability of the input, output and the functioning of each algorithmic . The transparency and explainability of AI systems are building block and how it contributes to the outcome often essential preconditions to ensure the respect, of the

Supporting Research (explainability):

→ Train ltextquotesingle n Trade: Foundations of Parameter Markets (category alignment: 0.883)

We introduce four principles for explainable artificial intelligence (AI) that comprise fundamental properties for explainable AI systems. We propose that explainable AI systems deliver accompanying evidence or reasons for outcomes and processes; provide explanations that are understandable to individual users; provide explanations that correctly reflect the system's process for generating the output

→ Advancing Early Alzheimer's Disease Detection in Underdeveloped Areas with Fair Explainable AI Methods (category alignment: 0.855)

Artificial intelligence (AI)-based telemedicine systems for early Alzheimer's detection using low-cost modalities are vital for rural or underdeveloped areas where travelling distance and high-cost devices like MRI are drawbacks. These systems require explainable AI (XAI) for reliable outcomes and intuitive explanations. Current XAI evaluations lack input from medical professionals and overlook

→ On the Connection between Game-Theoretic Feature Attributions and Counterfactual Explanations (category alignment: 0.853)

Explainable Artificial Intelligence (XAI) has received widespread interest in recent years, and two of the most popular types of explanations are feature attributions, and counterfactual explanations. These classes of approaches have been largely studied independently and the few attempts at reconciling them have been primarily empirical. This work establishes a clear theoretical connection between

NIST: AI Risk Management Framework

Research Foundation Strength: 16.4646 | Research Consensus: 37 papers

Category: EXPLAINABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.778)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.890)

Explainability refers to a representation of the mechanisms underlying AI systems operation, whereas interpretability refers to the meaning of AI systems output in the context of their designed functional purposes. Together, explainability and interpretability assist those operating or overseeing an AI system, as well as users of an AI system, to gain deeper insights into the functionality and trust an AI system made a particular prediction or recommendation. (See Four Principles of Explainable Artificial Intelligence and Psychological Foundations of Explainability and Interpretability in Artificial Intelligence found here.) Transparency, explainability, and interpretability are distinct characteristics that support each other. Transparency can answer the question of what happened in the system.

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.886)

Supporting Research (explainability):

→ Train in Text: Foundations of Parameter Markets (category alignment: 0.883)

We introduce four principles for explainable artificial intelligence (AI) that comprise fundamental properties for explainable AI systems. We propose that explainable AI systems deliver accompanying evidence or reasons for outcomes and processes; provide explanations that are understandable to individual users; provide explanations that correctly reflect the system's process for generating the output

→ Advancing Early Alzheimer's Disease Detection in Underdeveloped Areas with Fair Explainable AI Methods (category alignment: 0.855)

Artificial intelligence (AI)-based telemedicine systems for early Alzheimer's detection using low-cost modalities are vital for rural or underdeveloped areas where travelling distance and high-cost devices like MRI are drawbacks. These systems require explainable AI (XAI) for reliable outcomes and intuitive explanations. Current XAI evaluations lack input from medical professionals and overlook

→ On the Connection between Game-Theoretic Feature Attributions and Counterfactual Explanations (category alignment: 0.853)

Explainable Artificial Intelligence (XAI) has received widespread interest in recent years, and two of the most popular types of explanations are feature attributions, and counterfactual explanations. These classes of approaches have been largely studied independently and the few attempts at reconciling them have been primarily empirical. This work establishes a clear theoretical connection between

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.777)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence accountability" (score: 0.874)

Trustworthy AI depends upon accountability. Accountability presupposes transparency.

Transparency reflects the extent to which information about an AI system and its outputs is available to individuals interacting with such a system regardless of whether they are even aware that they are doing so. Meaningful transparency provides access to appropriate levels of information based on the stage of the AI lifecycle and tailored to the role

Keyword matched: "accountable artificial intelligence" (score: 0.868)

Trustworthy AI depends upon accountability. Accountability presupposes transparency.

Transparency reflects the extent to which information about an AI system and its outputs is available to individuals interacting with such a system regardless of whether they are even aware that they are doing so. Meaningful transparency provides access to appropriate levels of information based on the stage of the AI lifecycle and tailored to the role

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introduces

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations (category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evaluates

Category: FAIRNESS (avg. keyword score: 0.770)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence fairness" (score: 0.840)

Bias exists in many forms and can become ingrained in the automated systems that help make decisions about our lives. While bias is not always a negative phenomenon, AI systems can potentially increase the speed and scale of biases and perpetuate and amplify harm to individuals, groups, communities, organizations, and society. Bias is tightly associated with the concepts of transparency as well as fairness

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equity" (score: 0.839)

Workforce diversity, and managing AI risks throughout the lifecycle is informed by a equity, inclusion, diverse team (e.g., diversity of demographics, disciplines, experience and accessibility, expertise, and backgrounds). GOVERNANCE: Policies and procedures are in place to define and differentiate roles and responsibilities for human-AI configuration mapping,

Supporting Research (fairness):

→ Fairness in Agreement With European Values: An Interdisciplinary Perspective on AI Regulation (category alignment: 0.842)

With increasing digitalization, Artificial Intelligence (AI) is becoming ubiquitous. AI-based systems to identify, optimize, automate, and scale solutions to complex economic and societal problems are being proposed and implemented. This has motivated regulation efforts, including the Proposal of an EU AI Act. This interdisciplinary position paper considers various concerns surrounding fairness and

→ Recycling Privileged Learning and Distribution Matching for Fairness (category alignment: 0.841)

Equipping machine learning models with ethical and legal constraints is a serious issue; without this, the future of machine learning is at risk. This paper takes a step forward in this direction and focuses on ensuring machine learning models deliver fair decisions. In legal scholarship, the notion of fairness itself is evolving and multi-faceted. We set an overarching goal to develop a unified

→ Contrastive Counterfactual Fairness in Algorithmic Decision-Making (category alignment: 0.840)

The widespread use of artificial intelligence algorithms and their role in decision-making with consequential decisions for human subjects has resulted in a growing interest in designing AI algorithms accounting for fairness considerations. There have been attempts to account for fairness of AI algorithms without compromising their accuracy to improve poorly designed algorithms that disregard sens

G7 Hiroshima Summit: AI Process Code of Conduct

Research Foundation Strength: 16.4554 | Research Consensus: 35 papers

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.778)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence accountability mechanisms" (score: 0.853)

to support the development of effective monitoring mechanisms, which we may explore to develop, In addition, we encourage organizations to set up internal AI governance structures and policies, including self-assessment mechanisms, to facilitate a responsible and accountable approach to implementation of these actions and in AI development. While harnessing the opportunities of innovation, organiz

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence governance" (score: 0.850)

Develop, implement and disclose AI governance and risk management policies, grounded in a risk-based approach including privacy policies, and mitigation measures. Organizations should put in place appropriate organizational mechanisms to develop, disclose and implement risk management and governance policies, including for example accountability and governance processes to identify, assess, preven

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introdu

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations (category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evalu

Category: PRIVACY (avg. keyword score: 0.769)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence confidentiality" (score: 0.837)

This includes responsibly sharing information, as appropriate, including, but not limited to evaluation reports, information on security and safety risks, dangerous intended or unintended capabilities, and attempts by AI actors to circumvent safeguards across the AI lifecycle.

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence confidential" (score: 0.837)

Publicly report advanced AI systems capabilities, limitations and domains of appropriate

Supporting Research (privacy):

→ To Regulate or to Be Regulated? – How to Protect the ‘Freedom of Mind’ Against Emotional AI Surveillance (category alignment: 0.849)

This research discusses how emotional artificial intelligence (AI) surveillance could violate freedom of thought and freedom of expression by eroding personal autonomy through coercive manipulation and behavioral engineering, and analyzes to what extent the EU AI Act and the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) address such risk.

→ On the Privacy Risks of Model Explanations (category alignment: 0.828)

Privacy and transparency are two key foundations of trustworthy machine learning. Model explanations offer insights into a model's decisions on input data, whereas privacy is primarily concerned with protecting information about the training data. We analyze connections between model explanations and the leakage of sensitive information about the model's training set. We investigate the privacy ri

→ AI Ethics in Cyborg Anthropology: Examining AI-Driven Job Displacement Among Women and Marginalized Groups (category alignment: 0.823)

This paper positions future work in AI ethics through the lens of cyborg anthropology. It proposes autoethnography, case studies, and surveys to identify the role AI plays in the job insecurity faced by women and marginalized persons.

Category: FAIRNESS (avg. keyword score: 0.765)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence fairness" (score: 0.835)

investment on the security, safety, bias and disinformation, fairness, explainability and interpretability, and transparency of advanced AI systems and on increasing robustness and trustworthiness of advanced AI systems against misuse. Identify and mitigate vulnerabilities, and, where appropriate, incidents and patterns of misuse, after deployment including placement on the market.

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equity" (score: 0.833)

investment on the security, safety, bias and disinformation, fairness, explainability and interpretability, and transparency of advanced AI systems and on increasing robustness and trustworthiness of advanced AI systems against misuse. Identify and mitigate vulnerabilities, and, where appropriate, incidents and patterns of misuse, after deployment including placement on the market.

Supporting Research (fairness):

→ Fairness in Agreement With European Values: An Interdisciplinary Perspective on AI Regulation (category alignment: 0.842)

With increasing digitalization, Artificial Intelligence (AI) is becoming ubiquitous. AI-based systems to identify, optimize, automate, and scale solutions to complex economic and societal problems are being proposed and implemented. This has motivated regulation efforts, including the Proposal of an EU AI Act. This interdisciplinary position paper considers various concerns surrounding fairness an

→ Recycling Privileged Learning and Distribution Matching for Fairness (category alignment: 0.841)

Equipping machine learning models with ethical and legal constraints is a serious issue; without this, the future of machine learning is at risk. This paper takes a step forward in this direction and focuses on ensuring machine learning models deliver fair decisions. In legal scholarships, the notion of fairness itself is evolving and multi-faceted. We set an overarching goal to develop a unified

→ Contrastive Counterfactual Fairness in Algorithmic Decision-Making (category alignment: 0.840)

The widespread use of artificial intelligence algorithms and their role in decision-making with consequential decisions for human subjects has resulted in a growing interest in designing AI algorithms accounting for fairness considerations. There have been attempts to account for fairness of AI algorithms without compromising their accuracy to improve poorly designed algorithms that disregard sens

EU: Ethics Guidelines for Trustworthy AI

Research Foundation Strength: 16.4157 | Research Consensus: 25 papers

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.776)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence auditability" (score: 0.905)

Auditability refers to the ability of an AI system to undergo the assessment of the system s algorithms, data and

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence accountability" (score: 0.872)

The requirement of accountability complements the above requirements, and is closely linked to the principle of fairness. It necessitates that mechanisms be put in place to ensure responsibility and accountability for AI systems

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introdu

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations (category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evalu

Category: EXPLAINABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.774)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.874)

relevant to an AI system: the data, the system and the business models. Traceability. The data sets and the processes that yield the AI system's decision, including those of data gathering and data labelling as well as the algorithms used, should be documented to the best possible standard to allow for traceability and an increase in transparency. This also applies to the decisions made by the AI

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.874)

or increasing its accuracy (at the cost of explainability). Whenever an AI system has a significant impact on people's lives, it should be possible to demand a suitable explanation of the AI system's decision-making process. Such explanation should be timely and adapted to the expertise of the stakeholder concerned (e.g. layperson, regulator or researcher). In addition, explanations of the degree

Supporting Research (explainability):

→ Train Text-to-Single n Trade: Foundations of Parameter Markets (category alignment: 0.883)

We introduce four principles for explainable artificial intelligence (AI) that comprise fundamental properties for explainable AI systems. We propose that explainable AI systems deliver accompanying evidence or reasons for outcomes and processes; provide explanations that are understandable to individual users; provide explanations that correctly reflect the system's process for generating the out

→ Advancing Early Alzheimer's Disease Detection in Underdeveloped Areas with Fair Explainable AI Methods (category alignment: 0.855)

Artificial intelligence (AI)-based telemedicine systems for early Alzheimer's detection using low-cost modalities are vital for rural or underdeveloped areas where travelling distance and high-cost devices like MRI are drawbacks. These systems require explainable AI (XAI) for reliable outcomes and intuitive explanations. Current XAI evaluations lack input from medical professionals and overlook st

→ On the Connection between Game-Theoretic Feature Attributions and Counterfactual Explanations (category alignment: 0.853)

Explainable Artificial Intelligence (XAI) has received widespread interest in recent years, and two of the most popular types of explanations are feature attributions, and counterfactual explanations. These classes of approaches have been largely studied independently and the few attempts at reconciling them have been primarily empirical. This work establishes a clear theoretical connection between

Category: FAIRNESS (avg. keyword score: 0.774)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equality" (score: 0.886)

must be ensured. This goes beyond non-discrimination, which tolerates the drawing of distinctions between dissimilar situations based on objective justifications. In an AI context, equality entails that the system's operations cannot generate unfairly biased outputs (e.g. the data used to train AI systems should be as inclusive as possible, representing different population groups). This also requires

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence fairness" (score: 0.863)

. Diversity, non-discrimination and fairness In order to achieve Trustworthy AI, we must enable inclusion and diversity throughout the entire AI system's life cycle. Besides the consideration and involvement of all affected stakeholders throughout the process, this also entails ensuring equal access through inclusive design processes as well as equal treatment. This requirement is closely linked with

Supporting Research (fairness):

→ Fairness in Agreement With European Values: An Interdisciplinary Perspective on AI Regulation

(category alignment: 0.842)

With increasing digitalization, Artificial Intelligence (AI) is becoming ubiquitous. AI-based systems to identify, optimize, automate, and scale solutions to complex economic and societal problems are being proposed and implemented. This has motivated regulation efforts, including the Proposal of an EU AI Act. This interdisciplinary position paper considers various concerns surrounding fairness and

→ Recycling Privileged Learning and Distribution Matching for Fairness (category alignment: 0.841)

Equipping machine learning models with ethical and legal constraints is a serious issue; without this, the future of machine learning is at risk. This paper takes a step forward in this direction and focuses on ensuring machine learning models deliver fair decisions. In legal scholarship, the notion of fairness itself is evolving and multi-faceted. We set an overarching goal to develop a unified

→ Contrastive Counterfactual Fairness in Algorithmic Decision-Making (category alignment: 0.840)

The widespread use of artificial intelligence algorithms and their role in decision-making with consequential decisions for human subjects has resulted in a growing interest in designing AI algorithms accounting for fairness considerations. There have been attempts to account for fairness of AI algorithms without compromising their accuracy to improve poorly designed algorithms that disregard sens

Brazil: AI for the Good of All

Research Foundation Strength: 16.3519 | Research Consensus: 15 papers

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.769)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence accountability" (score: 0.879)

Transparency and accountability are essential pillars of any governance structure. The European Union, through its EU Artificial Intelligence Observatory, ensures that all initiatives related to AI are monitored

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence accountability mechanisms" (score: 0.868)

Transparency and accountability are essential pillars of any governance structure. The European Union, through its EU Artificial Intelligence Observatory, ensures that all initiatives related to AI are monitored

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introduces

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations

(category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evalu

Category: FAIRNESS (avg. keyword score: 0.766)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence fairness" (score: 0.874)

Typical principles of Responsible AI include: Fairness: ensuring that AI systems do not treat people unfairly, especially underrepresented Transparency: ensuring that AI systems are transparent and explainable, meaning the results

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equality" (score: 0.850)

and the appreciation of work and workers, preventing inequality An AI for the Good of All places the human being at the center of its development and application. AI systems must be designed to complement, expand, and enhance human capabilities, not replace them. Accessibility is fundamental, ensuring that the benefits of AI are not limited only to citizens of developed countries or privileged gro

Supporting Research (fairness):

→ Fairness in Agreement With European Values: An Interdisciplinary Perspective on AI Regulation (category alignment: 0.842)

With increasing digitalization, Artificial Intelligence (AI) is becoming ubiquitous. AI-based systems to identify, optimize, automate, and scale solutions to complex economic and societal problems are being proposed and implemented. This has motivated regulation efforts, including the Proposal of an EU AI Act. This interdisciplinary position paper considers various concerns surrounding fairness an

→ Recycling Privileged Learning and Distribution Matching for Fairness (category alignment: 0.841)

Equipping machine learning models with ethical and legal constraints is a serious issue; without this, the future of machine learning is at risk. This paper takes a step forward in this direction and focuses on ensuring machine learning models deliver fair decisions. In legal scholarships, the notion of fairness itself is evolving and multi-faceted. We set an overarching goal to develop a unified

→ Contrastive Counterfactual Fairness in Algorithmic Decision-Making (category alignment: 0.840)

The widespread use of artificial intelligence algorithms and their role in decision-making with consequential decisions for human subjects has resulted in a growing interest in designing AI algorithms accounting for fairness considerations. There have been attempts to account for fairness of AI algorithms without compromising their accuracy to improve poorly designed algorithms that disregard sens

Category: EXPLAINABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.759)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.837)

Typical principles of Responsible AI include: Fairness: ensuring that AI systems do not treat people unfairly, especially underrepresented Transparency: ensuring that AI systems are transparent and explainable, meaning the results

Keyword matched: "explainable artificial intelligence" (score: 0.827)

Typical principles of Responsible AI include: Fairness: ensuring that AI systems do not treat people unfairly, especially underrepresented Transparency: ensuring that AI systems are transparent and explainable, meaning the results

Supporting Research (explainability):

→ Train ttextquotessingle n Trade: Foundations of Parameter Markets (category alignment: 0.883)

We introduce four principles for explainable artificial intelligence (AI) that comprise fundamental properties for explainable AI systems. We propose that explainable AI systems deliver accompanying evidence or reasons for outcomes and processes; provide explanations that are understandable to individual users; provide explanations that correctly reflect the system s process for generating the out

→ Advancing Early Alzheimer's Disease Detection in Underdeveloped Areas with Fair Explainable AI Methods (category alignment: 0.855)

Artificial intelligence (AI)-based telemedicine systems for early Alzheimer's detection using low-cost modalities are vital for rural or underdeveloped areas where travelling distance and high-cost devices like MRI are drawbacks. These systems require eXplainable AI (XAI) for reliable outcomes and intuitive explanations.

Current XAI evaluations lack input from medical professionals and overlook st

→ On the Connection between Game-Theoretic Feature Attributions and Counterfactual Explanations (category alignment: 0.853)

Explainable Artificial Intelligence (XAI) has received widespread interest in recent years, and two of the most popular types of explanations are feature attributions, and counterfactual explanations. These classes of approaches have been largely studied independently and the few attempts at reconciling them have been primarily empirical. This work establishes a clear theoretical connection between

UK: Pro-Innovation Approach to AI Regulation

Research Foundation Strength: 16.3462 | Research Consensus: 15 papers

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.763)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence accountability" (score: 0.896)

allocate accountability for outcomes generated by AI systems that rely on or

Keyword matched: "accountable artificial intelligence" (score: 0.893)

allocate accountability for outcomes generated by AI systems that rely on or

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introdu

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations (category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evalu

Category: EXPLAINABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.757)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.890)

Explainability refers to the extent to which it is possible for relevant parties to access, interpret and understand the decision-making An appropriate level of transparency and explainability will mean that regulators have sufficient information about AI systems and their

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.889)

At a technical level, the explainability of AI systems remains an important research and development challenge. The logic and decisionmaking in AI systems cannot always be meaningfully explained in a way that is intelligible to humans, although in many settings this poses no substantial risk. It is also true that in some cases, a decision made by AI

Supporting Research (explainability):

→ Train ttextquotessingle n Trade: Foundations of Parameter Markets (category alignment: 0.883)

We introduce four principles for explainable artificial intelligence (AI) that comprise fundamental properties for explainable AI systems. We propose that explainable AI systems deliver accompanying evidence or reasons for outcomes and processes; provide explanations that are understandable to individual users; provide explanations that correctly reflect the system s process for generating the out

→ Advancing Early Alzheimer's Disease Detection in Underdeveloped Areas with Fair Explainable AI Methods (category alignment: 0.855)

Artificial intelligence (AI)-based telemedicine systems for early Alzheimer's detection using low-cost modalities are vital for rural or underdeveloped areas where travelling distance and high-cost devices like MRI are drawbacks. These systems require eXplainable AI (XAI) for reliable outcomes and intuitive explanations. Current XAI evaluations lack input from medical professionals and overlook st

→ On the Connection between Game-Theoretic Feature Attributions and Counterfactual Explanations (category alignment: 0.853)

Explainable Artificial Intelligence (XAI) has received widespread interest in recent years, and two of the most popular types of explanations are feature attributions, and counterfactual explanations. These classes of approaches have been largely studied independently and the few attempts at reconciling them have been primarily empirical. This work establishes a clear theoretical connection between

Category: FAIRNESS (avg. keyword score: 0.755)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence fairness" (score: 0.866)

Discriminatory outcomes that result from the use of AI may contravene the protections set out in the Equality Act . AI systems are also required by data protection law to process personal data fairly.

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equality" (score: 0.865)

. AI systems should not produce discriminatory outcomes, such as

Supporting Research (fairness):

→ Fairness in Agreement With European Values: An Interdisciplinary Perspective on AI Regulation (category alignment: 0.842)

With increasing digitalization, Artificial Intelligence (AI) is becoming ubiquitous. AI-based systems to identify, optimize, automate, and scale solutions to complex economic and societal problems are being proposed and implemented. This has motivated regulation efforts, including the Proposal of an EU AI Act. This interdisciplinary position paper considers various concerns surrounding fairness an

→ Recycling Privileged Learning and Distribution Matching for Fairness (category alignment: 0.841)

Equipping machine learning models with ethical and legal constraints is a serious issue; without this, the future of machine learning is at risk. This paper takes a step forward in this direction and focuses on ensuring machine learning models deliver fair decisions. In legal scholarships, the notion of fairness itself is evolving and multi-faceted. We set an overarching goal to develop a unified

→ Contrastive Counterfactual Fairness in Algorithmic Decision-Making (category alignment: 0.840)

The widespread use of artificial intelligence algorithms and their role in decision-making with consequential decisions for human subjects has resulted in a growing interest in designing AI algorithms accounting for fairness considerations. There have been attempts to account for fairness of AI algorithms without compromising their accuracy to improve poorly designed algorithms that disregard sens

New Zealand: AI Strategy — Investing with Confidence

Research Foundation Strength: 16.2911 | Research Consensus: 11 papers

Category: FAIRNESS (avg. keyword score: 0.753)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equity" (score: 0.845)

. Investing in AI research and development . Inclusive growth, sustainable development . Fostering an inclusive AI-enabling ecosystem . Human rights and democratic values, including . Shaping an enabling interoperable governance . Building human capacity and preparing for labour market transformation . Robustness, security and safety . International co-operation for trustworthy AI . Accountability

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equality" (score: 0.845)

. Investing in AI research and development . Inclusive growth, sustainable development . Fostering an inclusive AI-enabling ecosystem . Human rights and democratic values, including . Shaping an enabling interoperable governance . Building human capacity and preparing for labour market transformation .

Robustness, security and safety . International co-operation for trustworthy AI . Accountability

Supporting Research (fairness):

→ Fairness in Agreement With European Values: An Interdisciplinary Perspective on AI Regulation (category alignment: 0.842)

With increasing digitalization, Artificial Intelligence (AI) is becoming ubiquitous. AI-based systems to identify, optimize, automate, and scale solutions to complex economic and societal problems are being proposed and implemented. This has motivated regulation efforts, including the Proposal of an EU AI Act. This interdisciplinary position paper considers various concerns surrounding fairness and

→ Recycling Privileged Learning and Distribution Matching for Fairness (category alignment: 0.841)

Equipping machine learning models with ethical and legal constraints is a serious issue; without this, the future of machine learning is at risk. This paper takes a step forward in this direction and focuses on ensuring machine learning models deliver fair decisions. In legal scholarship, the notion of fairness itself is evolving and multi-faceted. We set an overarching goal to develop a unified

→ Contrastive Counterfactual Fairness in Algorithmic Decision-Making (category alignment: 0.840)

The widespread use of artificial intelligence algorithms and their role in decision-making with consequential decisions for human subjects has resulted in a growing interest in designing AI algorithms accounting for fairness considerations. There have been attempts to account for fairness of AI algorithms without compromising their accuracy to improve poorly designed algorithms that disregard sens

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.753)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence compliance" (score: 0.859)

Some businesses perceive uncertainty about how existing laws apply to AI applications and what additional compliance requirements may emerge. These businesses may adopt a cautious approach to AI implementation

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence compliance" (score: 0.858)

Responsible AI Guidance for Businesses. This guidance provides advice for implementing AI whilst managing risks and meeting regulatory obligations. This guidance covers a range of AI considerations, including cybersecurity, privacy, and intellectual property that businesses can integrate into their processes and functions to get the most

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introdu

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations (category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evalu

Category: EXPLAINABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.749)

Keyword matched: "explainable artificial intelligence" (score: 0.819)

Generative AI is a type of AI system that More broadly, AI enables organisations to operate with greater intelligence, helping them to make faster, more informed decisions, optimising complex systems, and uncovering patterns that drive strategic advantage. It

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.819)

Barrier: Lack of understanding and perceived value A frequently cited barrier to AI adoption is insufficient understanding of AI's potential applications and benefits. One survey found that while % of workers had heard of AI, only % could clearly explain what it is (Verian,). This knowledge gap is particularly pronounced among SMEs, where decision-makers may understand AI conceptually, but struggle

Supporting Research (explainability):

→ Trainable Trade: Foundations of Parameter Markets (category alignment: 0.883)

We introduce four principles for explainable artificial intelligence (AI) that comprise fundamental properties for explainable AI systems. We propose that explainable AI systems deliver accompanying evidence or reasons for outcomes and processes; provide explanations that are understandable to individual users; provide explanations that correctly reflect the system's process for generating the output

→ Advancing Early Alzheimer's Disease Detection in Underdeveloped Areas with Fair Explainable AI Methods (category alignment: 0.855)

Artificial intelligence (AI)-based telemedicine systems for early Alzheimer's detection using low-cost modalities are vital for rural or underdeveloped areas where travelling distance and high-cost devices like MRI are drawbacks. These systems require explainable AI (XAI) for reliable outcomes and intuitive explanations. Current XAI evaluations lack input from medical professionals and overlook

→ On the Connection between Game-Theoretic Feature Attributions and Counterfactual Explanations (category alignment: 0.853)

Explainable Artificial Intelligence (XAI) has received widespread interest in recent years, and two of the most popular types of explanations are feature attributions, and counterfactual explanations. These classes of approaches have been largely studied independently and the few attempts at reconciling them have been primarily empirical. This work establishes a clear theoretical connection between

US: Executive Order 14110 on Safe AI

Research Foundation Strength: 16.2712 | Research Consensus: 8 papers

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.757)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence governance" (score: 0.871)

(iii) for the agencies identified in U.S.C. (b), the creation of internal Artificial Intelligence Governance Boards, or other appropriate mechanisms, at each agency within days of the issuance of the guidance to coordinate and govern AI issues through relevant senior leaders from across evaluations, careful oversight, engagement with affected communities, and rigorous regulation. It is necessary to hold those developing and deploying AI accountable to standards that protect against unlawful discrimination and

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence accountability" (score: 0.867)

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introduces

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations (category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evaluates

Category: FAIRNESS (avg. keyword score: 0.750)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equitable" (score: 0.862)

whether algorithmic systems in use by benefit programs achieve equitable

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equality" (score: 0.857)

(d) Artificial Intelligence policies must be consistent with my Administration's dedication to advancing equity and civil rights. My

Supporting Research (fairness):

→ Fairness in Agreement With European Values: An Interdisciplinary Perspective on AI Regulation (category alignment: 0.842)

With increasing digitalization, Artificial Intelligence (AI) is becoming ubiquitous. AI-based systems to identify, optimize, automate, and scale solutions to complex economic and societal problems are being proposed and implemented. This has motivated regulation efforts, including the Proposal of an EU AI Act. This interdisciplinary position paper considers various concerns surrounding fairness an

→ Recycling Privileged Learning and Distribution Matching for Fairness (category alignment: 0.841)

Equipping machine learning models with ethical and legal constraints is a serious issue; without this, the future of machine learning is at risk. This paper takes a step forward in this direction and focuses on ensuring machine learning models deliver fair decisions. In legal scholarships, the notion of fairness itself is evolving and multi-faceted. We set an overarching goal to develop a unified

→ Contrastive Counterfactual Fairness in Algorithmic Decision-Making (category alignment: 0.840)

The widespread use of artificial intelligence algorithms and their role in decision-making with consequential decisions for human subjects has resulted in a growing interest in designing AI algorithms accounting for fairness considerations. There have been attempts to account for fairness of AI algorithms without compromising their accuracy to improve poorly designed algorithms that disregard sens

Category: PRIVACY (avg. keyword score: 0.746)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence privacy" (score: 0.868)

(f) Americans privacy and civil liberties must be protected as AI continues advancing. Artificial Intelligence is making it easier to extract, reidentify, link, infer, and act on sensitive information about people's identities, locations, habits, and desires. Artificial Intelligence's capabilities in these nondiscrimination and privacy laws as they relate to AI.

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence privacy" (score: 0.864)

Supporting Research (privacy):

→ To Regulate or to Be Regulated? – How to Protect the 'Freedom of Mind' Against Emotional AI Surveillance (category alignment: 0.849)

This research discusses how emotional artificial intelligence (AI) surveillance could violate freedom of thought and freedom of expression by eroding personal autonomy through coercive manipulation and behavioral engineering, and analyzes to what extent the EU AI Act and the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) address such risk.

→ On the Privacy Risks of Model Explanations (category alignment: 0.828)

Privacy and transparency are two key foundations of trustworthy machine learning. Model explanations offer insights into a model's decisions on input data, whereas privacy is primarily concerned with protecting information about the training data. We analyze connections between model explanations and the leakage of sensitive information about the model's training set. We investigate the privacy ri

→ AI Ethics in Cyborg Anthropology: Examining AI-Driven Job Displacement Among Women and Marginalized Groups (category alignment: 0.823)

This paper positions future work in AI ethics through the lens of cyborg anthropology. It proposes autoethnography, case studies, and surveys to identify the role AI plays in the job insecurity faced by women and marginalized persons.

US: America AI Action Plan

Research Foundation Strength: 16.2699 | Research Consensus: 8 papers

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.767)

Keyword matched: "accountable artificial intelligence" (score: 0.841)

Responsible AI and Generative AI Frameworks, Roadmaps, and Toolkits. Led by ODNI in consultation with DOD and CAISI at DOC, publish an IC Standard on AI Assurance under the auspices of Intelligence Community Directive on Artificial Promote Mature Federal Capacity for AI Incident Response The proliferation of AI technologies means that prudent planning is required to ensure that, if

Keyword matched: "accountable artificial intelligence" (score: 0.840)

can help deliver the highly responsive government the American people expect and deserve. AMERICA S AIACTION PLANOMB has already advanced AI adoption in government by reducing onerous rules imposed by the Biden Administration. , Now is the time to build on this success.

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introdu

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations (category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evalu

Category: FAIRNESS (avg. keyword score: 0.761)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equity" (score: 0.832)

Advancing Artificial Intelligence Education for American Youth and Preparing Americans

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equality" (score: 0.829)

Advancing Artificial Intelligence Education for American Youth and Preparing Americans

Supporting Research (fairness):

→ Fairness in Agreement With European Values: An Interdisciplinary Perspective on AI Regulation (category alignment: 0.842)

With increasing digitalization, Artificial Intelligence (AI) is becoming ubiquitous. AI-based systems to identify, optimize, automate, and scale solutions to complex economic and societal problems are being proposed and implemented. This has motivated regulation efforts, including the Proposal of an EU AI Act. This interdisciplinary position paper considers various concerns surrounding fairness an

→ Recycling Privileged Learning and Distribution Matching for Fairness (category alignment: 0.841)

Equipping machine learning models with ethical and legal constraints is a serious issue; without this, the future of machine learning is at risk. This paper takes a step forward in this direction and focuses on ensuring machine learning models deliver fair decisions. In legal scholarships, the notion of fairness itself is evolving and multi-faceted. We set an overarching goal to develop a unified

→ Contrastive Counterfactual Fairness in Algorithmic Decision-Making (category alignment: 0.840)

The widespread use of artificial intelligence algorithms and their role in decision-making with consequential decisions for human subjects has resulted in a growing interest in designing AI algorithms accounting for fairness considerations. There have been attempts to account for fairness of AI algorithms without compromising their accuracy to improve poorly designed algorithms that disregard sens

Category: EXPLAINABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.756)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.846)

often cannot explain why a model produced a specific output. This can make it hard to predict the behavior of any specific AI system. This lack of predictability, in turn, can make it challenging to use advanced AI in defense, national security, or other applications where lives are at stake. The United States will be better able to use AI systems to their fullest potential in high-stakes national

Keyword matched: "explainable artificial intelligence" (score: 0.833)

often cannot explain why a model produced a specific output. This can make it hard to predict the behavior of any specific AI system. This lack of predictability, in turn, can make it challenging to use advanced AI in defense, national security, or other applications where lives are at stake. The United States will be better able to use AI systems to their fullest potential in high-stakes national

Supporting Research (explainability):

→ Train It to Explain: Foundations of Parameter Markets (category alignment: 0.883)

We introduce four principles for explainable artificial intelligence (AI) that comprise fundamental properties for explainable AI systems. We propose that explainable AI systems deliver accompanying evidence or reasons for outcomes and processes; provide explanations that are understandable to individual users; provide explanations that correctly reflect the system's process for generating the output

→ Advancing Early Alzheimer's Disease Detection in Underdeveloped Areas with Fair Explainable AI Methods (category alignment: 0.855)

Artificial intelligence (AI)-based telemedicine systems for early Alzheimer's detection using low-cost modalities are vital for rural or underdeveloped areas where travelling distance and high-cost devices like MRI are drawbacks. These systems require explainable AI (XAI) for reliable outcomes and intuitive explanations. Current XAI evaluations lack input from medical professionals and overlook

→ On the Connection between Game-Theoretic Feature Attributions and Counterfactual Explanations (category alignment: 0.853)

Explainable Artificial Intelligence (XAI) has received widespread interest in recent years, and two of the most popular types of explanations are feature attributions, and counterfactual explanations. These classes of approaches have been largely studied independently and the few attempts at reconciling them have been primarily empirical. This work establishes a clear theoretical connection between

EU: Communication on AI Innovation

Research Foundation Strength: 16.2381 | Research Consensus: 5 papers

Category: FAIRNESS (avg. keyword score: 0.765)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equality" (score: 0.839)

respect of human rights by AI systems used. By combining excellence in biotechnology and AI, the Union has a unique opportunity to reap the huge benefits that generative AI is expected to bring in various sectors such as

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equitable" (score: 0.839)

respect of human rights by AI systems used. By combining excellence in biotechnology and AI, the Union has a unique opportunity to reap the huge benefits that generative AI is expected to bring in various sectors such as

Supporting Research (fairness):

→ Fairness in Agreement With European Values: An Interdisciplinary Perspective on AI Regulation (category alignment: 0.842)

With increasing digitalization, Artificial Intelligence (AI) is becoming ubiquitous. AI-based systems to identify, optimize, automate, and scale solutions to complex economic and societal problems are being proposed and implemented. This has motivated regulation efforts, including the Proposal of an EU AI Act. This interdisciplinary position paper considers various concerns surrounding fairness and

→ Recycling Privileged Learning and Distribution Matching for Fairness (category alignment: 0.841)
Equipping machine learning models with ethical and legal constraints is a serious issue; without this, the future of machine learning is at risk. This paper takes a step forward in this direction and focuses on ensuring machine learning models deliver fair decisions. In legal scholarships, the notion of fairness itself is evolving and multi-faceted. We set an overarching goal to develop a unified

→ Contrastive Counterfactual Fairness in Algorithmic Decision-Making (category alignment: 0.840)
The widespread use of artificial intelligence algorithms and their role in decision-making with consequential decisions for human subjects has resulted in a growing interest in designing AI algorithms accounting for fairness considerations. There have been attempts to account for fairness of AI algorithms without compromising their accuracy to improve poorly designed algorithms that disregard sens

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.763)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence compliance" (score: 0.865)

Union is close to adopting a regulation laying down harmonised rules on AI (the AI Act), the world s first comprehensive regulatory framework for trustworthy AI. This is coupled with the first publicly mandated standardisation work on AI14, which the Commission is

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence compliance" (score: 0.851)

The AI Act provides legal certainty and enhances the uptake of trustworthy AI solutions by focusing its regulatory requirements on high-risk applications. Moreover, it sets proportionate rules for general-purpose AI models, with a focus on models with a systemic impact, giving downstream providers the confidence to adopt and integrate these models in their AI

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introdu

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations (category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evalu

Category: EXPLAINABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.757)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.823)

advanced AI models, systems and applications. For example, models learn from a vast amount of text to understand the structure and context of language without explicit instructions about what each piece of text is about. Models can therefore learn and generalise their understanding of the

Keyword matched: "explainable artificial intelligence" (score: 0.821)

advanced AI models, systems and applications. For example, models learn from a vast amount of text to understand the structure and context of language without explicit instructions about what each piece of text is about. Models can therefore learn and generalise their understanding of the

Supporting Research (explainability):

→ Train ttextquotesingle n Trade: Foundations of Parameter Markets (category alignment: 0.883)

We introduce four principles for explainable artificial intelligence (AI) that comprise fundamental properties for explainable AI systems. We propose that explainable AI systems deliver accompanying evidence or reasons for outcomes and processes; provide explanations that are understandable to individual users; provide explanations that correctly reflect the system's process for generating the output

→ Advancing Early Alzheimer's Disease Detection in Underdeveloped Areas with Fair Explainable AI Methods (category alignment: 0.855)

Artificial intelligence (AI)-based telemedicine systems for early Alzheimer's detection using low-cost modalities are vital for rural or underdeveloped areas where travelling distance and high-cost devices like MRI are drawbacks. These systems require explainable AI (XAI) for reliable outcomes and intuitive explanations. Current XAI evaluations lack input from medical professionals and overlook

→ On the Connection between Game-Theoretic Feature Attributions and Counterfactual Explanations (category alignment: 0.853)

Explainable Artificial Intelligence (XAI) has received widespread interest in recent years, and two of the most popular types of explanations are feature attributions, and counterfactual explanations. These classes of approaches have been largely studied independently and the few attempts at reconciling them have been primarily empirical. This work establishes a clear theoretical connection between

EU: AI Act

Research Foundation Strength: 16.1905 | Research Consensus: 5 papers

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.764)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence compliance" (score: 0.876)

compliance with the requirements in respect of high-risk AI systems.

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence compliance" (score: 0.871)

() This Regulation regulates AI systems and AI models by imposing certain requirements and obligations for relevant

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introduces

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations (category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evaluates

Category: PRIVACY (avg. keyword score: 0.756)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence privacy" (score: 0.870)

use of privacy-preserving techniques in the context of the development and testing of AI systems. In particular, data

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence confidentiality" (score: 0.857)

adequate level of confidentiality. Procedure at national level for dealing with AI systems presenting a risk. AI systems presenting a risk shall be understood as a product presenting a risk as defined in Article 3, point of Regulation (EU) / , in so far as they present risks to the health or safety, or to fundamental rights, of persons. . Where the market surveillance authority of a Member State

Supporting Research (privacy):

→ To Regulate or to Be Regulated? – How to Protect the ‘Freedom of Mind’ Against Emotional AI Surveillance (category alignment: 0.849)

This research discusses how emotional artificial intelligence (AI) surveillance could violate freedom of thought and freedom of expression by eroding personal autonomy through coercive manipulation and behavioral engineering, and analyzes to what extent the EU AI Act and the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) address such risk.

→ On the Privacy Risks of Model Explanations (category alignment: 0.828)

Privacy and transparency are two key foundations of trustworthy machine learning. Model explanations offer insights into a model's decisions on input data, whereas privacy is primarily concerned with protecting information about the training data. We analyze connections between model explanations and the leakage of sensitive information about the model's training set. We investigate the privacy ri

→ AI Ethics in Cyborg Anthropology: Examining AI-Driven Job Displacement Among Women and Marginalized Groups (category alignment: 0.823)

This paper positions future work in AI ethics through the lens of cyborg anthropology. It proposes autoethnography, case studies, and surveys to identify the role AI plays in the job insecurity faced by women and marginalized persons.

Category: EXPLAINABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.755)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.849)

generalisability. Therefore, AI systems identifying or inferring emotions or intentions of natural persons on the basis

Keyword matched: "explainable artificial intelligence" (score: 0.840)

generalisability. Therefore, AI systems identifying or inferring emotions or intentions of natural persons on the basis

Supporting Research (explainability):

→ Train ttextquotesingle n Trade: Foundations of Parameter Markets (category alignment: 0.883)

We introduce four principles for explainable artificial intelligence (AI) that comprise fundamental properties for explainable AI systems. We propose that explainable AI systems deliver accompanying evidence or reasons for outcomes and processes; provide explanations that are understandable to individual users; provide explanations that correctly reflect the system s process for generating the out

→ Advancing Early Alzheimer's Disease Detection in Underdeveloped Areas with Fair Explainable AI Methods (category alignment: 0.855)

Artificial intelligence (AI)-based telemedicine systems for early Alzheimer's detection using low-cost modalities are vital for rural or underdeveloped areas where travelling distance and high-cost devices like MRI are drawbacks. These systems require eXplainable AI (XAI) for reliable outcomes and intuitive explanations. Current XAI evaluations lack input from medical professionals and overlook st

→ On the Connection between Game-Theoretic Feature Attributions and Counterfactual Explanations (category alignment: 0.853)

Explainable Artificial Intelligence (XAI) has received widespread interest in recent years, and two of the most popular types of explanations are feature attributions, and counterfactual explanations. These classes of approaches have been largely studied independently and the few attempts at reconciling them have been primarily empirical. This work establishes a clear theoretical connection between

EU: Guidelines on Definition of AI Systems

Research Foundation Strength: 16.1800 | Research Consensus: 4 papers

Category: EXPLAINABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.781)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.826)

to automatically execute operations. This capability to infer is therefore a key, indispensable condition that distinguishes AI systems from other types of systems.

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.823)

() Outputs of AI systems belong to four broad categories listed in Article 3() AI Act: predictions, content, recommendations, and decisions. Each category differs in its level () Predictions are one of the most common outputs that AI system produce and that require the least human involvement. A prediction is an estimate about an unknown value (the output) from known values supplied to the syst

Supporting Research (explainability):

→ Train ttextquotesingle n Trade: Foundations of Parameter Markets (category alignment: 0.883)

We introduce four principles for explainable artificial intelligence (AI) that comprise fundamental properties for explainable AI systems. We propose that explainable AI systems deliver accompanying evidence or reasons for outcomes and processes; provide explanations that are understandable to individual users; provide explanations that correctly reflect the system s process for generating the out

→ Advancing Early Alzheimer's Disease Detection in Underdeveloped Areas with Fair Explainable AI Methods (category alignment: 0.855)

Artificial intelligence (AI)-based telemedicine systems for early Alzheimer's detection using low-cost modalities are vital for rural or underdeveloped areas where travelling distance and high-cost devices like MRI are drawbacks. These systems require eXplainable AI (XAI) for reliable outcomes and intuitive explanations. Current XAI evaluations lack input from medical professionals and overlook st

→ On the Connection between Game-Theoretic Feature Attributions and Counterfactual Explanations (category alignment: 0.853)

Explainable Artificial Intelligence (XAI) has received widespread interest in recent years, and two of the most popular types of explanations are feature attributions, and counterfactual explanations. These classes of approaches have been largely studied independently and the few attempts at reconciling them have been primarily empirical. This work establishes a clear theoretical connection between

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.772)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence compliance" (score: 0.846)

Commission Guidelines on the definition of an artificial intelligence system established () Regulation (EU) / of the European Parliament and of the Council (the AI Act) entered into force on August . The AI Act lays down harmonised rules for the development, placing on the market, putting into service, and use of artificial intelligence (AI) in the Union. Its aim is to promote innovation in a prohibited AI practices. As the definition of an AI system is decisive to understanding the scope of the AI Act including the prohibited practices, the present Guidelines are adopted in parallel to Commission guidelines on prohibited artificial intelligence practices.

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence compliance" (score: 0.840)

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introdu

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations (category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evalu

Category: FAIRNESS (avg. keyword score: 0.766)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equality" (score: 0.819)

to automatically execute operations. This capability to infer is therefore a key, indispensable condition that distinguishes AI systems from other types of systems.

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equity" (score: 0.811)

to automatically execute operations. This capability to infer is therefore a key, indispensable condition that distinguishes AI systems from other types of systems.

Supporting Research (fairness):

→ Fairness in Agreement With European Values: An Interdisciplinary Perspective on AI Regulation (category alignment: 0.842)

With increasing digitalization, Artificial Intelligence (AI) is becoming ubiquitous. AI-based systems to identify, optimize, automate, and scale solutions to complex economic and societal problems are being proposed and implemented. This has motivated regulation efforts, including the Proposal of an EU AI Act. This interdisciplinary position paper considers various concerns surrounding fairness an

→ Recycling Privileged Learning and Distribution Matching for Fairness (category alignment: 0.841)

Equipping machine learning models with ethical and legal constraints is a serious issue; without this, the future of machine learning is at risk. This paper takes a step forward in this direction and focuses on ensuring machine learning models deliver fair decisions. In legal scholarships, the notion of fairness itself is evolving and multi-faceted. We set an overarching goal to develop a unified

→ Contrastive Counterfactual Fairness in Algorithmic Decision-Making (category alignment: 0.840)

The widespread use of artificial intelligence algorithms and their role in decision-making with consequential decisions for human subjects has resulted in a growing interest in designing AI algorithms accounting for fairness considerations. There have been attempts to account for fairness of AI algorithms without compromising their accuracy to improve poorly designed algorithms that disregard sens

US: Executive Order 14141 on AI Infrastructure

Research Foundation Strength: 16.1320 | Research Consensus: 2 papers

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.743)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence compliance" (score: 0.848)

(iv) require adherence to technical standards and guidelines for cyber, supply-chain, and physical security for protecting and controlling any facilities, equipment, devices, systems, data, and other property, including AI model weights, that are developed, acquired, modified, used, or stored

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence compliance" (score: 0.845)

consistent with applicable law. As part of this work, the Permitting Council may provide coordination of permitting for AI infrastructure on Federal sites, as appropriate and to the extent that the relevant developers of AI

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introdu

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations (category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evalu

Category: FAIRNESS (avg. keyword score: 0.738)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equitable" (score: 0.848)

an interoperable, competitive AI ecosystem;

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equity" (score: 0.840)

an interoperable, competitive AI ecosystem;

Supporting Research (fairness):

→ Fairness in Agreement With European Values: An Interdisciplinary Perspective on AI Regulation (category alignment: 0.842)

With increasing digitalization, Artificial Intelligence (AI) is becoming ubiquitous. AI-based systems to identify, optimize, automate, and scale solutions to complex economic and societal problems are being proposed and implemented. This has motivated regulation efforts, including the Proposal of an EU AI Act. This interdisciplinary position paper considers various concerns surrounding fairness an

→ Recycling Privileged Learning and Distribution Matching for Fairness (category alignment: 0.841)

Equipping machine learning models with ethical and legal constraints is a serious issue; without this, the future of machine learning is at risk. This paper takes a step forward in this direction and focuses on ensuring machine learning models deliver fair decisions. In legal scholarships, the notion of fairness itself is evolving and multi-faceted. We set an overarching goal to develop a unified

→ Contrastive Counterfactual Fairness in Algorithmic Decision-Making (category alignment: 0.840)

The widespread use of artificial intelligence algorithms and their role in decision-making with consequential decisions for human subjects has resulted in a growing interest in designing AI algorithms accounting for fairness considerations. There have been attempts to account for fairness of AI algorithms without compromising their accuracy to improve poorly designed algorithms that disregard sens

Category: EXPLAINABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.733)

Keyword matched: "explainable artificial intelligence" (score: 0.820)

an interoperable, competitive AI ecosystem;

Keyword matched: "explainable artificial intelligence" (score: 0.820)

of AI infrastructure to advance their understanding of resources available

Supporting Research (explainability):

→ Train Textquotesingle n Trade: Foundations of Parameter Markets (category alignment: 0.883)

We introduce four principles for explainable artificial intelligence (AI) that comprise fundamental properties for explainable AI systems. We propose that explainable AI systems deliver accompanying evidence or reasons for outcomes and processes; provide explanations that are understandable to individual users; provide explanations that correctly reflect the system s process for generating the out

→ Advancing Early Alzheimer's Disease Detection in Underdeveloped Areas with Fair Explainable AI Methods (category alignment: 0.855)

Artificial intelligence (AI)-based telemedicine systems for early Alzheimer's detection using low-cost modalities are vital for rural or underdeveloped areas where travelling distance and high-cost devices like MRI are drawbacks. These systems require eXplainable AI (XAI) for reliable outcomes and intuitive explanations. Current XAI evaluations lack input from medical professionals and overlook st

→ On the Connection between Game-Theoretic Feature Attributions and Counterfactual Explanations (category alignment: 0.853)

Explainable Artificial Intelligence (XAI) has received widespread interest in recent years, and two of the most popular types of explanations are feature attributions, and counterfactual explanations. These classes of approaches have been largely studied independently and the few attempts at reconciling them have been primarily empirical. This work establishes a clear theoretical connection between

US: Blueprint for an AI Bill of Rights

Research Foundation Strength: 16.1016 | Research Consensus: 2 papers

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.761)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence algorithmic accountability" (score: 0.856)

Assembling Accountability: Algorithmic Impact Assessment for the Public Interest. Data & Society Research Institute Report. June . <https://datasociety.net/library/assembling-accountabilityalgorithmic-impact-assessment-for-the-public-interest/>; Nicol Turner Lee, Paul Resnick, and Genie Barton. Algorithmic bias detection and mitigation: Best practices and policies to reduce consumer harms. <https://www.fda.gov/oc/algorithmic-bias-detection-and-mitigation>

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence compliance" (score: 0.851)

our nation's adversaries and are often subject to special requirements, such as those governing classified information and other protected data. Such activities require alternative, compatible safeguards through existing policies that govern automated systems and AI, such as the Department of Defense (DOD) AI Ethical Principles and Responsible AI Implementation Pathway and the Intelligence Community

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introduces

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations (category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evaluates

Category: FAIRNESS (avg. keyword score: 0.757)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence fairness" (score: 0.882) generation of artificially intelligent partners. The National Science Foundation's program on Fairness in equitable way. Algorithmic discrimination occurs when automated systems contribute to unjustified different treatment or impacts disfavoring people based on their race, color, ethnicity,

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equitable" (score: 0.860)

Supporting Research (fairness):

→ Fairness in Agreement With European Values: An Interdisciplinary Perspective on AI Regulation (category alignment: 0.842)

With increasing digitalization, Artificial Intelligence (AI) is becoming ubiquitous. AI-based systems to identify, optimize, automate, and scale solutions to complex economic and societal problems are being proposed and implemented. This has motivated regulation efforts, including the Proposal of an EU AI Act. This interdisciplinary position paper considers various concerns surrounding fairness and

→ Recycling Privileged Learning and Distribution Matching for Fairness (category alignment: 0.841)

Equipping machine learning models with ethical and legal constraints is a serious issue; without this, the future of machine learning is at risk. This paper takes a step forward in this direction and focuses on ensuring machine learning models deliver fair decisions. In legal scholarship, the notion of fairness itself is evolving and multi-faceted. We set an overarching goal to develop a unified

→ Contrastive Counterfactual Fairness in Algorithmic Decision-Making (category alignment: 0.840)

The widespread use of artificial intelligence algorithms and their role in decision-making with consequential decisions for human subjects has resulted in a growing interest in designing AI algorithms accounting for fairness considerations. There have been attempts to account for fairness of AI algorithms without compromising their accuracy to improve poorly designed algorithms that disregard sens

Category: PRIVACY (avg. keyword score: 0.755)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence privacy" (score: 0.846)

. Jay Stanley. Pitfalls of Artificial Intelligence Decisionmaking Highlighted In Idaho ACLU Case. <https://www.aclu.org/blog/privacy-technology/pitfalls-artificial-intelligence-decisionmakinghighlighted-idaho-aclu-case> . Illinois General Assembly. Biometric Information Privacy Act. Effective Oct. . <https://www.ilga.gov/legislation/ilcs/ilcs3.asp?ActID= &ChapterID=> . Partnership on AI. ABOUTML Refer

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence privacy" (score: 0.840)

Privacy-preserving security. Entities creating, using, or governing automated systems should follow privacy and security best practices designed to ensure data and metadata do not leak beyond the specific consented use case. Best practices could include using privacy-enhancing cryptography or other types of privacy-enhancing technologies or fine-grained permissions and access control mechanisms, a

Supporting Research (privacy):

→ To Regulate or to Be Regulated? – How to Protect the ‘Freedom of Mind’ Against Emotional AI Surveillance (category alignment: 0.849)

This research discusses how emotional artificial intelligence (AI) surveillance could violate freedom of thought and freedom of expression by eroding personal autonomy through coercive manipulation and behavioral engineering, and analyzes to what extent the EU AI Act and the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) address such risk.

→ On the Privacy Risks of Model Explanations (category alignment: 0.828)

Privacy and transparency are two key foundations of trustworthy machine learning. Model explanations offer insights into a model's decisions on input data, whereas privacy is primarily concerned with protecting information about the training data. We analyze connections between model explanations and the leakage of sensitive information about the model's training set. We investigate the privacy ri

→ AI Ethics in Cyborg Anthropology: Examining AI-Driven Job Displacement Among Women and Marginalized Groups (category alignment: 0.823)

This paper positions future work in AI ethics through the lens of cyborg anthropology. It proposes autoethnography, case studies, and surveys to identify the role AI plays in the job insecurity faced by women and marginalized persons.

China: Interim Measures for Generative AI

Research Foundation Strength: 16.0560 | Research Consensus: 0 papers

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.789)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence governance" (score: 0.830)

Interim Measures for the Management of Generative Artificial Intelligence Services

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence compliance" (score: 0.827)

Interim Measures for the Management of Generative Artificial Intelligence Services

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introdu

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations (category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evalu

Category: FAIRNESS (avg. keyword score: 0.783)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence equitable" (score: 0.824)

)Thelawfulrightsandinterestsofothersshallberespected,andthephysicalandmentalhealthofothers mustnotbeharmed,andtherightstolikeness,reputation,honor,personalprivacy,andpersonal informationrightsandinterestsofothersmustnotbeinfringed;and (

)Basedonservicetypesandcharacteristics,effectivemeasuresshallbeemployedtoincreasethe transparencyingenerativeAIservicesandimprovetheaccuracyandreliabilityofgenerat

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence fairness" (score: 0.818)

)Thelawfulrightsandinterestsofothersshallberespected,andthephysicalandmentalhealthofothers mustnotbeharmed,andtherightstolikeness,reputation,honor,personalprivacy,andpersonal informationrightsandinterestsofothersmustnotbeinfringed;and (

)Basedonservicetypesandcharacteristics,effectivemeasuresshallbeemployedtoincreasethe transparencyingenerativeAIservicesandimprovetheaccuracyandreliabilityofgenerat

Supporting Research (fairness):

→ Fairness in Agreement With European Values: An Interdisciplinary Perspective on AI Regulation (category alignment: 0.842)

With increasing digitalization, Artificial Intelligence (AI) is becoming ubiquitous. AI-based systems to identify, optimize, automate, and scale solutions to complex economic and societal problems are being proposed and implemented. This has motivated regulation efforts, including the Proposal of an EU AI Act. This interdisciplinary position paper considers various concerns surrounding fairness an

→ Recycling Privileged Learning and Distribution Matching for Fairness (category alignment: 0.841)

Equipping machine learning models with ethical and legal constraints is a serious issue; without this, the future of machine learning is at risk. This paper takes a step forward in this direction and focuses on ensuring machine learning models deliver fair decisions. In legal scholarships, the notion of fairness itself is evolving and multi-faceted. We set an overarching goal to develop a unified

→ Contrastive Counterfactual Fairness in Algorithmic Decision-Making (category alignment: 0.840)

The widespread use of artificial intelligence algorithms and their role in decision-making with consequential decisions for human subjects has resulted in a growing interest in designing AI algorithms accounting for fairness considerations. There have been attempts to account for fairness of AI algorithms without compromising their accuracy to improve poorly designed algorithms that disregard sens

Category: EXPLAINABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.780)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.810)

)Thelawfulrightsandinterestsofothersshallberespected,andthephysicalandmentalhealthofothers mustnotbeharmed,andtherightstolikeness,reputation,honor,personalprivacy,andpersonal informationrightsandinterestsofothersmustnotbeinfringed;and (

)Basedonservicetypesandcharacteristics,effectivemeasuresshallbeemployedtoincreasethe transparencyingenerativeAIservicesandimprovetheaccuracyandreliabilityofgenerat

Keyword matched: "explainable artificial intelligence" (score: 0.808)

)Thelawfulrightsandinterestsofothersshallberespected,andthephysicalandmentalhealthofothers mustnotbeharmed,andtherightstolikeness,reputation,honor,personalprivacy,andpersonal informationrightsandinterestsofothersmustnotbeinfringed;and (

)Basedonservicetypesandcharacteristics,effectivemeasuresshallbeemployedtoincreasethe

transparencyingenerativeAIservicesandimprovetheaccuracyandreliabilityofgenerat

Supporting Research (explainability):

→ Train ltextquotesingle n Trade: Foundations of Parameter Markets (category alignment: 0.883)

We introduce four principles for explainable artificial intelligence (AI) that comprise fundamental properties for explainable AI systems. We propose that explainable AI systems deliver accompanying evidence or reasons for outcomes and processes; provide explanations that are understandable to individual users; provide explanations that correctly reflect the system s process for generating the out

→ Advancing Early Alzheimer's Disease Detection in Underdeveloped Areas with Fair Explainable AI Methods (category alignment: 0.855)

Artificial intelligence (AI)-based telemedicine systems for early Alzheimer's detection using low-cost modalities are vital for rural or underdeveloped areas where travelling distance and high-cost devices like MRI are drawbacks. These systems require eXplainable AI (XAI) for reliable outcomes and intuitive explanations. Current XAI evaluations lack input from medical professionals and overlook st

→ On the Connection between Game-Theoretic Feature Attributions and Counterfactual Explanations (category alignment: 0.853)

Explainable Artificial Intelligence (XAI) has received widespread interest in recent years, and two of the most popular types of explanations are feature attributions, and counterfactual explanations. These classes of approaches have been largely studied independently and the few attempts at reconciling them have been primarily empirical. This work establishes a clear theoretical connection between

GPAl: Code of Practice (v3)

Research Foundation Strength: 15.9568 | Research Consensus: 0 papers

Category: ACCOUNTABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.748)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence compliance" (score: 0.879)

The Safety and Security Section of the Code of Practice describes one way in which leading AI companies can comply with the AI Act. The AI Act is a binding AI regulation passed by the European Union in . The part of the AI Act that is concerned with obligations for general-purpose AI models (GPAl) will become effective on August . To give GPAl providers a blueprint of one way to comply

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence compliance" (score: 0.860)

I. Assisting providers of general-purpose AI models to effectively comply with their obligations under the AI Act - if assessed as adequate by the AI Office and the Board (Article 56() AI Act). The Code should also enable the AI Office to assess compliance of providers who choose to rely on the Code to demonstrate compliance with their obligations under the AI Act. This can involve, e.g., allowin

Supporting Research (accountability):

→ Algorithmic Recourse (category alignment: 0.840)

With the rapid deployment of algorithms in high-stakes domains such as finance, healthcare, and justice, recourse has emerged as a critical tool in explainable AI. Algorithmic Recourse provides individuals with recommendations to reverse unfavorable outcomes, addressing the growing need for transparency and accountability in automated decision-making systems. My research investigates the design of

→ A Multidimensional Approach to Ethical AI Auditing (category alignment: 0.833)

The increasing integration of Artificial Intelligence (AI) across various sectors of society raises complex ethical challenges requiring systematic and scalable oversight mechanisms. While tools such as AIF360 and Aequitas address specific dimensions, namely fairness, there remains a lack of comprehensive frameworks capable of auditing multiple ethical principles simultaneously. This paper introdu

→ Decoding Global AI Governance: A Computational Linguistic Analysis of National Regulations (category alignment: 0.832)

Artificial Intelligence (AI) regulations addressing rights, usage limits, bias, and accountability mechanisms have been adopted by governments worldwide. My research examines global AI governance through a comparative analysis of regulatory documents from over 60 countries. Using mixed methods, including advanced computational linguistics techniques to support qualitative analysis, this work evalu

Category: EXPLAINABILITY (avg. keyword score: 0.744)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.832)

Evaluation:

A detailed description of the evaluation strategies that are not already included in the Model Report, including evaluation criteria, metrics, evaluation results and the methodology used for the identification of limitations based on available public evaluation protocols and tools or otherwise of other evaluation methodologies.

Adversarial testing: Where applicable, a detailed description of the measures put in place for the purpose of conducting

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence explainability" (score: 0.830)

. Offence-defence balance, including the potential number, capacity, and motivation of malicious .

Vulnerability of the specific environment potentially affected by the model (e.g., social . Lack of model explainability or transparency . Interactions with other AI models or systems . Inadequate use of model (e.g., using the model for applications that do not match its capabilities or

Supporting Research (explainability):

→ Train It text quotesingle n Trade: Foundations of Parameter Markets (category alignment: 0.883)

We introduce four principles for explainable artificial intelligence (AI) that comprise fundamental properties for explainable AI systems. We propose that explainable AI systems deliver accompanying evidence or reasons for outcomes and processes; provide explanations that are understandable to individual users; provide explanations that correctly reflect the system's process for generating the output

→ Advancing Early Alzheimer's Disease Detection in Underdeveloped Areas with Fair Explainable AI Methods (category alignment: 0.855)

Artificial intelligence (AI)-based telemedicine systems for early Alzheimer's detection using low-cost modalities are vital for rural or underdeveloped areas where travelling distance and high-cost devices like MRI are drawbacks. These systems require explainable AI (XAI) for reliable outcomes and intuitive explanations. Current XAI evaluations lack input from medical professionals and overlook

→ On the Connection between Game-Theoretic Feature Attributions and Counterfactual Explanations (category alignment: 0.853)

Explainable Artificial Intelligence (XAI) has received widespread interest in recent years, and two of the most popular types of explanations are feature attributions, and counterfactual explanations. These classes of approaches have been largely studied independently and the few attempts at reconciling them have been primarily empirical. This work establishes a clear theoretical connection between

Category: PRIVACY (avg. keyword score: 0.741)

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence confidentiality" (score: 0.853)

Finally, in accordance with Article 78 AI Act, the recipients of any of the information contained in the Model Documentation Form are obliged to respect the confidentiality of the information obtained, in particular intellectual property rights and confidential business information or trade secrets, and to put in place adequate and effective cybersecurity measures to protect the security and confidentiality

Keyword matched: "artificial intelligence confidential" (score: 0.843)

Finally, in accordance with Article 78 AI Act, the recipients of any of the information contained in the Model Documentation Form are obliged to respect the confidentiality of the information obtained, in particular intellectual property rights and confidential business information or trade secrets, and to put in place adequate and effective cybersecurity measures to protect the security and confidentiality

Supporting Research (privacy):

→ To Regulate or to Be Regulated? – How to Protect the 'Freedom of Mind' Against Emotional AI Surveillance (category alignment: 0.849)

This research discusses how emotional artificial intelligence (AI) surveillance could violate freedom of thought and freedom of expression by eroding personal autonomy through coercive manipulation and behavioral engineering, and analyzes to what extent the EU AI Act and the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) address such risk.

→ On the Privacy Risks of Model Explanations (category alignment: 0.828)

Privacy and transparency are two key foundations of trustworthy machine learning. Model explanations offer insights into a model's decisions on input data, whereas privacy is primarily concerned with protecting information about the training data. We analyze connections between model explanations and the leakage of sensitive information about the model's training set. We investigate the privacy ri

→ AI Ethics in Cyborg Anthropology: Examining AI-Driven Job Displacement Among Women and Marginalized Groups (category alignment: 0.823)

This paper positions future work in AI ethics through the lens of cyborg anthropology. It proposes autoethnography, case studies, and surveys to identify the role AI plays in the job insecurity faced by women and marginalized persons.